"We rented a photo booth and asked guests to make as many strips as they wanted but to leave us one. We saved them as our guest book. They're some of my favorite photos!" —Keri Pink (Keri and her husband, Geoff Kabush, pose for a portrait in front of Hatley Castle, site of their October 2006 wedding in Victoria, British Columbia)

"We loved taking dance lessons together. Not only were we able to wow our wedding guests, but the lessons gave us a chance to spend time alone together every week." Adrienne Wheatley Eason (Adrienne and her groom, Ray Eason, outside San Francisco City Hall following their wedding there in July 2006)

"After the ceremony, Matt and I skipped the cocktail hour and had a private dinner together. This gave us the chance to share some time alone. Plus, then we were able to go around to each table and greet guests during dinner without starving ourselves."
